Additional information for School of Graduate Studies applicants

- You must select a host graduate unit (department, centre, institute, etc.).
  - Go to your institution's page and review the School of Graduate Studies tab for full details on how to select your host department.

Before applying for exchange, you need to determine the graduate unit (department, faculty, or centre) and/or program that offers the courses you would like to take at U of T. You will take all/most of your courses from one “home” department. You cannot have a collaborative specialization (CS) as your home department.

STEP ONE: Use this list to determine the area of study that best matches your program of study at your home institution.

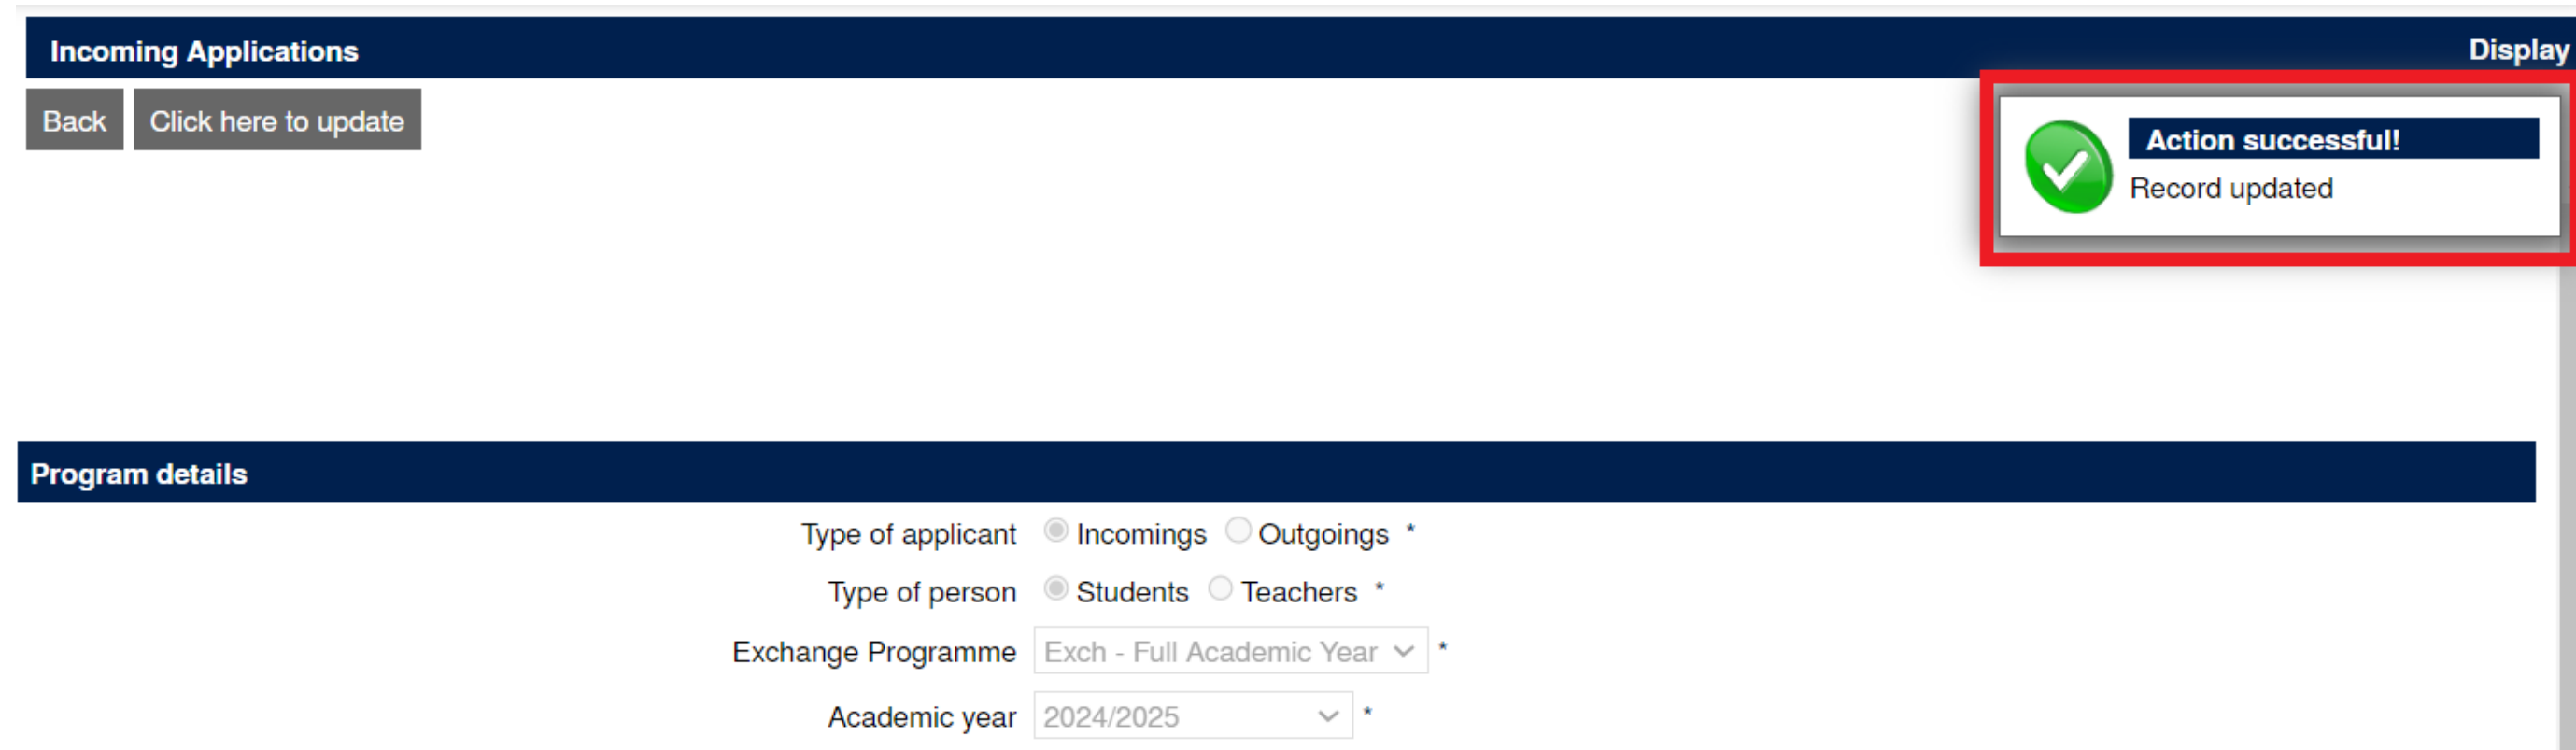

STEP TWO: Click on the program link to find the link to the departmental website.

STEP THREE: Use the departmental website to find graduate courses offered by the department.

STEP FOUR: Include your desired home department/program in your Statement of Intent when applying. Your desired home department should match the list of courses you submit in your application.

- List your proposed courses on the application form under “Provide a list of your courses that you are thinking of taking during your exchange. Include course name and course code.” You will also need to list the same courses in your “Proposed Course List” document and upload that document in PDF.
- Admissions decisions are based on undergraduate grades. Make sure to submit your undergraduate transcript to your home institution when applying.

- ❑ A window will pop up in the top right-hand corner to indicate that the record has been updated.
